They comprise the six candidates for the position selected by the board as possibilities.

Both the gentlemen who are here today are highly educated. Prof. Spragins, while in charge of a small school, is a graduate of Yale, and took a degree at Johns Hopkins.

SCIENCE MARTYR IS REWARDED

Lieut. Carroll, Who Let Inoculated Mosquitoes Bite Him, Promoted.

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The house today passed a senate bill raising Lieut. James Carroll to the rank of major. Lieut. Carroll is the officer who submitted himself to the sting of mosquitoes inoculated with the germs of yellow fever while stationed in Cuba, and as a result has been an invalid ever since.

PROSPECT GOOD.

Butte, Mont., March 1.—The outlook for an early settlement of the mining troubles in Butte is improving. Several conferences have been held by members of the union and employers. Some of the committeemen predict in a few days the whole trouble will be adjusted. It is said the miners will get $4 a day.

HUSBAND HERE IN SEARCH OF HIS RECREANT SPOUSE

T. D. Swink, a painter, of Owensboro, was in Paducah last night in pursuit of his wife, who had $300 of his money, according to his statement, and their little girl. He believes she eloped with a man, B. C. Smiley, from Louisville, and came to Paducah. They were here a week, it is stated, and left yesterday for Memphis.

Bankruptcy.

An order directing Trustee Boyd to sell the property of E. Rehkopf was made by Judge Bagby this morning, the date of the sale to be the first or second Monday in April. Trustee Boyd, of the E. Rehkopf bankruptcy estate, was awarded the $1,078 sent here from New Orleans.

Fire Department.

The fire department made 17 runs in February, the losses being small. No difficult fires occurred during the month.

Burial Permits.

Thirty people were buried at Oak Grove cemetery during February. Nineteen were white people and eleven colored people.

There is only one kind of a newspaper circulation statement that is worth any consideration, and that is the daily detailed statement. The Sun is the only Paducah paper printing such a statement.

GLUE BURNS.
Cincinnati, March 1.—Joslin & Schmidt company's glue and fertilizing plant at Saint Bernard was burned this morning. The loss is $60,000.

CYCLONE.
Washington, Ark., March 1.—This town was almost wiped out by a cyclone last night. Two churches and a number of other buildings were demolished. Two negroes were killed and many negroes injured.

GROOM AND MONEY.
Detroit, March 1.—Mrs. Otto Weber, until Wednesday night, Mrs. Kille, of Toledo, has asked the police to find her husband of a day and $1,500 of her money, which, she says, disappeared with Weber morning after the wedding.

HIT AT SUBSIDY.
Washington, March 1.—In committee of the whole the house voted to strike from the ship subsidy bill the proposed subsidized line from San Francisco to Japan and China. Also provision for the line from Puget sound to the orient.

ANTI-MASONIC.
Belms, France, March 1.—Despite the precautions of the authorities, on the resumption of yesterday's anti-Masonic riots here, in which many persons were injured and 150 arrests made, it is expected the free Masons taken unprepared yesterday have handed the forces and are threatening vengeance on the Catholics responsible for the trouble.

BUSSE IS BACK.
Chicago, March 1.—Postmaster Bussee, who was injured in the Pennsylvania wreck near Altoona, recently, arrived in Chicago today and was greeted by a large delegation of politicians. He is still suffering from the injuries. The postmaster will be nominated tomorrow as Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago.

WIND, RAIN, HAIL.
Ft. Worth, Tex., March 1.—Wind, rain and hail created considerable havoc in Lamar county last night. No loss of life is reported. Four women were caught under their house when it blew off its foundation, and could not open the door. The house caught fire. They finally escaped by the chimney. A number of other buildings were blown away or destroyed.

LORD'S DAY ACT.
Toronto, March 1.—Lord's day act went into effect today. Under its provisions people are prohibited from transacting any business of their ordinary calling on Sunday. The sale of newspapers, both domestic and foreign, is prohibited. Street car traffic, except in case of international or interprovincial lines, now in operation, is unlawful.

FORFEITS FRANCHISE.
San Francisco, March 1.—The board of supervisors by unanimous consent last night, declared forfeited to the city and county of San Francisco all franchises in the city and county together with all water works and other plants of the Spring Valley Water company, which has a monopoly on the water service of the city. The company estimates the value of its franchises and works at $53,000, 000. The state constitution provides that any water company, which collects rates in excess of those provided by ordinance, shall forfeit its charter. The action was taken under this section.

Get Together Banquet For Commercial Club

The Commercial club will give a dinner and smoker at the Palmer Tuesday night, March 5, at 7 o'clock, the first of a series of "get-together" meetings for the business and professional men.

In Louisville, Chicago and many cities, the commercial organizations have had great success with similar gatherings, and have found that in this way the business men of the city can be gotten together to discuss things, concerning the city in general, and its advancement in particular, better than in any other way.

RURAL CARRIER IS UNDER ARREST

Charged With Embezzlement of Government Funds

Wade Brown, Deputy United States Marshal, Brings Prisoner From Fulton County.

NO HEARING IS HELD TODAY.

After an all night ride and tramp through the muddy bottoms, Wade Brown, deputy United States marshal, returned from Fulton county this morning, having in custody Elbert M. Stephenson, late rural carrier from the Casey office, who is charged with embezzlement of government funds. The amount of his alleged peculations is not stated, although it is small, and on account of the sickness of W. A. Gardner, United States commissioner, no hearing was given the prisoner today. He is in the McCracken county jail for safe keeping.

The prisoner is a single man and had borne a good reputation in his home county until he was dismissed from the service and this charge brought against him. Marshal Brown went up on the train last night and then drove across the country as far as he could. The streams were high and Marshal Brown was compelled to do considerable wading. He surprised the prisoner.

Marshal Brown kept his movements secret and declined to discuss the case today, as the hearing has not been held.

HIS SHOES FULL OF BLOOD. POLICEMAN DOES DUTY

With a bullet wound in his foot and his shoe filled with blood Patrolman William Johnson, of the Broadway squad, answered a call from the police station to arrest a disorderly crowd at Second street and Kentucky avenue last night. The wounding was due to an accident. While running from his home at Sixth and Harrison streets last evening about 7 o'clock to catch a car at Sixth and Madison streets, in response to a telephone call, his revolver dropped to the sidewalk and was discharged, the .38 calibre ball penetrating his right shoe where the sole joins the upper, and plowing along through the sole of his foot to the other side. No bone was injured and the injury is not serious.

TWO CHANGES TAKE PLACE IN ENGINEER'S OFFICE

Changes in City Engineer Washington's office will be necessitated by the resignation of two of his assistants: Mr. Stanley Miller, who has accepted a position with a firm in San Francisco; and Mr. Rumsey Bradshaw, who leaves to become traveling salesman for a shoe firm. Mr. Bradshaw severs his connection with the department Monday. Mr. Miller, who has been supervising sewer district, No. 2, resigned effective March 15. Mr. Washington will go to Westmoreland, Va., tomorrow to visit his father. The office will be in charge of Mr. R. B. Richardson during his absence.

Revenue Collections.
Mr. L. L. Bebout, the stamp deputy, collected $10,501.19 during February from parties on tobacco and whisky. There were 547 wholesale liquor stamps issued.

Marriage Licenses.
During February marriage licenses were secured by forty-three white couples and five colored couples.

Let the gilded youths be examined before they start out to see the world.

SALOON ROBBED DURING NIGHT

Detectives Are Investigating Case and Two Suspected of Some Knowledge are Being "Sweated"

STEAL VARIETY OF THINGS

Between 9 o'clock last night and 6 o'clock this morning, Thomas Thompson's saloon, 118 Kentucky avenue, was burglarized, the thieves securing an entrance through the rear door. Two dollars and forty-five cents in money, a Smith and Wesson revolver, pear handle, valued at $12; two pints of whiskey, three decks of cards, and all the cigars out of two boxes were taken. Entrance was effected through the rear door to the pool room adjoining the saloon and a hole was cut through a panel in the door leading into the saloon. Reaching in through this hole, the door was unlocked and the items mentioned were missing this morning.

Thompson's saloon is owned and frequented by negroes, principally roustabouts who lounge around the rear room playing cards and drinking. No clew to the burglary has been found, but two negroes are known to have pass keys to the rear door where the entrance was effected. Detectives Moore and Baker saw one of these negroes this morning and will see the other before night. One of them was accustomed to build the fire and sweep out in the mornings, but did not show up this morning.

PADUCAH HAS FRIEND ON THE STATE BOARD.

Mr. G. N. McGrew, of Bayou, Livingston county, was elected as a member of the state board of agriculture, forestry and immigration, at the State Farmers' institute, held at Shelbyville. There was a vacancy in the board for the First and Third appellate districts, and Mr. H. L. Baldwin, of Webster county, J. B. Walker, of Christian county, and Mr. G. N. McGrew, of Livingston county, were candidates. The election was won by Mr. McGrew after the reading of a strong appeal from the Paducah Commercial club for this position.

SEVENTY-FIVE YARDS: BUT SHOT WAS FATAL.

A crack pistol shot at a mad dog 75 yards away was made this morning by I. H. Brake, a railroad man, on Burnett street. The dog had been hanging around J. L. Jones' grocery on Burnett street and Motorman J. F. McNeill tried to corner him. The dog ran up the street and Brake took a chance shot at him, killing him instantly at 75 yards.

NEED MORE MONEY FOR RIVERSIDE

Board Will Appear Before Finance Committee Today and Ask For Three Thousand Additional

GROCERY BIDS ARE INVITED.

At least $8,900 is needed for the maintenance of Riverside hospital, in the opinion of the physicians in charge, and an appeal will be made to the finance committee of the general council today to furnish the funds in addition to the amount apportioned last month. The apportionment is $5,000, and the physicians of the city seem to have gotten the understanding that this was in addition to the earnings of the institution. These earnings go into the support of the institution. A deficit of $3,900 in the fund is the probable outcome.

It is the pay department that creates the extra expense of the hospital. The $5,000 easily will cover the expense of maintaining the charity ward; but additional money is needed for the pay patients. While it is true that this department also brings in about $5,500 annually, and thus by offset cuts down the expense of the hospital, it does not show on the face of the report, because the revenue from the hospital and the apportionment for its maintenance are kept in separate funds and departments.

The board ordered the secretary, Dr. Frank Boyd, to invite bids for furnishing groceries to the institution for six months.

I. C. GIVES COAL TO CHARITY CLUB

Mrs. George C. Wallace, president, of the Charity club, has been informed by J. T. Donovan, agent of the Illinois Central railroad, that his company will place one car load of coal at the disposal of the club. The gift will amount to 900 or a thousand bushels of coal and comes particularly welcome to the club which has been compelled to buy 700 bushels this winter. The coal will be placed in one of the coal yards in the city and distributed by Secretary Toner as needed.

City Finances.

The report of City Auditor Kirkland and City Treasurer Dorian for February is as follows:
Cash February 1. $45,634.86
Collected. 12,085.97
Disbursed. 13,746.76
Balance March 1. $43,974.07

THAW IS INSANE, SO MANY BELIEVE

His Statement Attacking District Attorney Regarded as Indication of Unsound Mind by Watchers

JEROME IS WORKING FOR THIL.

New York, March 1.—The impression is steadily growing among court officials and others, who have closely followed the Thaw trial that Harry Thaw is now insane. The statement which he gave out last night, attacking the district attorney has strengthened this impression. Jerome's sole object now appears to be to convince the jury that the defendant is mentally unsound. When court was called today Dr. Evans, the insanity expert, took the stand. His technical cross-examination, which was resumed, probably will occupy the entire day.

Harry K. Thaw enlivened an extremely dull session of his trial yesterday by giving out to newspapermen a brief statement in which he accused District Attorney Jerome of having made unprofessional remarks in court, asserted that his wife's testimony was the absolute truth.

Harry Thaw was insane when he wrote the Longfellow letters in 1903, and when he married Evelyn Nesbit, April 4 1905, and the night he killed Stanford White, June 25, 1906, according to the testimony of alienist Evans today. With these facts as a basis the district attorney has sought to have the expert admit Thaw's insanity is chronic, and still exists. Evans side-stepped issue.

Police Department.

The police department made 120 arrests during the month, which is fifty less than in January. The arrests were made for the following offenses: Breach of peace, 36; house-breaking, 5; jumping on train, 1; drunk and disorderly, 12; cruelty to animals, 1; vagrancy, 1; suspect, 1; drunkenness, 19; obtaining money by false pretenses, 1; disorderly conduct, 9; breach of ordinance, 4; petty larceny, 2; malicious mischief, 1; grand larceny, 11; carrying concealed deadly weapon, 5; fugitive, 1; using insulting language, 1; defrauding boarding house, 1; non-support, 1; malicious cutting, 1; rape, 1; insane, 1; fast driving, 1; total, 120.

OLD BOARD HOLDS SEVERAL YEARS

How Police Commissioners are Entrenched Behind Charter

THREATS OF CLEANING OUT.

Despite This Fact That Department Is Figuring in Contest for Mayoralty Nomination.

NEW CANDIDATES PAY FEES

Strife among Democratic candidates for the mayoralty nomination, principally apparent in the conversation of their friends, indicates that a cleaning out at the city hall will be undertaken, if one of several of the aspirants is successful. But difficulty will be found in carrying out that purpose, because some of the executive departments will retain their present personnel for almost the entire term of Mayor Yelder's successor. The board of public works will go out next February, but the police and fire commissioners are appointed for four years. Chairman Bonds has three years to serve, after this one, and the term of none of them will expire before next year. If Mann Clark is nominated for city jailer that will create a vacancy, but Mayor Yelder may have the appointment to make.

In spite of this fact, however, it is understood that Chief of Police Collins is supporting Col. Charles Reed in the race, and the strength of that department will be with him.

John G. Miller, Jr., paid his entrance fee to Chairman Berry this morning and his name will head the list in the race for city attorney.

Captain William Kraus, candidate in the Democratic primary for city treasurer, will finish his race tomorrow, according to the campaign literature he has used. On the cards showing the picture of Captain Kraus he says he is running subject to the action of the party in the primary March 2. It is a typographical error making the primary just two months ahead of the date, May 2.

Attorney Frank Lums paid in his entrance fee in the city attorney's race this morning.

"CHAIN PRAYER" SYSTEM.

Postoffice Authorities Are Going to Take a Hand.

The postoffice authorities believe they have hit on a plan to stop the system of "chain prayers" which has been in operation through the mails for about four years. The plan of the "chain" has been for a person to send a prayer to some person with the request that he send a like letter to nine other persons under penalty of having some misfortune befall him and thus the system has spread. The inspectors are now following the plan of reprinting those who receive and send these letters, when they can be discovered. The postal authorities and the police have been appealed to break up the system. The chain-workers cannot be prosecuted for using the mails, but it is believed the present plan of reprinting will result in breaking the chain.—Vincennes Capital.

NEW FRONT IS PROPOSED FOR AMERICAN-GERMAN.

Plans are being drawn for remodeling the front of the American-German National bank up to the second story. The elevator will be removed and winding stairways built. It will be one of the handsomest fronts in the city and entirely different from the present appearance.

Shot in Hand.

Charles Morgan, 16 years old, a clerk in Cooney's drug store, Fifth and Jackson streets, shot himself in the left hand with a revolver, which he was fixing this morning. Drs. Sights and Rivers dressed his injury.

WEATHER—Rain this afternoon and probably tonight with colder west portion. Saturday generally fair and colder. Highest temperature yesterday, 60; lowest today, 54.

Having come in like a lion, March ought to go out like a lamb, to fulfill the old saying. The river as usual got the full benefit of the wind and the river was so rough that the small craft had to stick close to the shore. The river is responding to the rains, having risen 1.2 in the last 24 hours and bringing the river up to 21.3. Rainfall until 7 o'clock this morning, .86 inches. March 1 last year the stage was 13.7. Business at the wharf was fair with only two arrivals.

When the barges taken on here are added to the Harvester's tow, that towboat will have 42 pieces for Pittsburg. It is a big tow for any boat and especially large for the Harvester. The Harvester arrived last night at 11 o'clock from Cairo and tied up just below here, leaving Saturday at noon for Pittsburg.

The Charles Turner left this morning for the Tennessee river after a tow of ties.

The Scotia is away up about Florence after ties on a twenty-five day trip.

The Peters Lee did not leave Memphis for Cincinnati until yesterday evening and will arrive here Saturday afternoon.

After several weeks of hard work the Monte Bauer has succeeded in raising three sunken barges at Joppa. The Monte Bauer came up from Joppa last night at 8 o'clock.

With the wind behind and the current swift, the Dick Fowler went to Cairo this morning in a big hurry. If the wind keeps up it will be hard pulling back tonight.

The John Hopkins arrived late today from Evansville and got away on the return trip after attending to business.

The T. H. Davis came up from Joppa last night after some barges of ties.

With the advent of March weather no calculation at the ways as to the exact date the boats now on will get off, can be made. A few hours brings a change in the weather that lays off half the men. It is probable that the Jim Duffy will get off early next week.

At the dry docks, the weather plays equally as interfering a part and the big barge repairing there goes ahead subject to King Elements.

The Kentucky came in this morning from the Tennessee river with a good trip and will leave Saturday evening for the same river.

The Georgia Lee will pass down from Cincinnati for Memphis Saturday afternoon or early Sunday.

The Saltito from St. Louis will be due Saturday or Sunday bound up the Tennessee river.

Official Forecasts.

The Ohio at Evansville and Mt. Vernon will continue rising during the next three days. At Paducah and Cairo will continue rising during the next several days. The rate of rise will decrease at Cairo during the next 12 hours, unless unexpected rainfalls prove to be heavy and then very likely increase again.

The Tennessee from Florence to the mouth will continue rising during the next several days.

A RELIABLE MEDICINE.

Why Our Local Druggist, W. B. McPherson, Recommends Vinol.

So many patent medicines and advertised cures are now offered to the public that our readers will be glad to know the opinion of a man who has spent years in handling them, and profit by his advice.

Said Mr. McPherson: "There is no one medicine that will cure everything, but this I do know, that if the people of Paducah only realized the wonderful curative and strengthening power of Vinol I would not have clerks enough in my store to put up the orders for it.

"You see, Vinol is not a patent medicine, and it actually does contain every one of the fifty odd medicinal curatives actually taken from fresh cods' livers, with the useless oil eliminated and tonic iron added. It contains no poisonous drugs, and you know just what you are taking.

"Therefore, in the strongest manner we endorse and recommend Vinol to increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength to the run down, tired and debilitated, invigorate and build up old people; make rich, red blood, cure chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails we return your money." W. B. McPherson, Druggist.

NOTE—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Paducah, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

General Miles' Thoroughness.

Some years ago General Miles started to drive from Red Lodge, Montana, to Cody, Wyoming, to see his friend Buffalo Bill. The road was rough, and the reckless driving of the man holding the lines made it seem rougher, but the Indian-fighter compressed his lips and clung to the seat without complaint. When near Cody, the general suddenly prodded the driver in the back with his walking stick and said curtly: "Driver, turn around."

"What?" exclaimed the astonished driver.

"Do as I tell you," commanded Miles. So the man turned the horses about and started back to Red Lodge. "Now turn here," ordered Miles, after they had driven a few yards. Convinced that his distinguished passenger had suddenly lost his mind, the driver turned about once more and started for Cody.

"There!" exclaimed Miles, in a tone of satisfaction, as the side wheels struck a stone and he bounded into the air. "You hit it! Now, driver, you can go back to Red Lodge and tell them that you drove seventy-five miles and never missed a rock. You've hit them, everyone." —March Lippincott's.

A Clever Actress.

"The Gertrude Ewing company presented Ouida's 'Under Two Flags' last night at the Grand to a large and appreciative audience. While the part of 'Cigarette' has been portrayed by some of our leading actresses, it did not suffer by comparison in the hands of Miss Ewing, who with her grace, beauty and dramatic force filled the ideal of Ouida's heroine to the entire satisfaction of all. Miss Ewing is adding many friends this week to those of her former visits here. She is not only a clever actress but a good business woman as well, having managed her own attractions for a number of years."—Fort Smith (Ark.) Times.

The Gertrude Ewing company will be the attraction at The Kentucky theater for one week commencing Monday, March 4. Ladies will be admitted free Monday night under the usual conditions.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

Road Levy in Livingston.

Smithland, Ky., March 1.—A step has been taken to make our roads better. Twenty cents on the hundred dollars, or 40 per cent of the entire levy has been set apart by the fiscal court for use in grading the roads of the county. This will produce about $6,000 that is to be spent on the roads this year. Three graders are to be in operation, one on the south side of Cumberland river and two on the north side—Salem and Lora making one road district and Carsville and Dyer Hill another.

Eloped to Fulton.

Mayfield, Ky., March 1.—Mr. Ed M. Brady and Miss Edna Cobb's friends were surprised to learn that they had eloped to Fulton, where they were married. They procured a horse and buggy and drove to Pryorsburg, where they boarded the local and went to Fulton. The wedding is quite a surprise to the family or both, as the bride is only 17 years old, and was attending West Kentucky college. She is the daughter of Mr. B. H. Cobb, of this city, and is a pretty young girl of the brunette type. Mr. Brady is twenty-two years old, and is a carpenter. He is a brother of Dr. T. E. Brady, the optician of this city. The couple will reside in Mayfield.

Old Officers Elected.

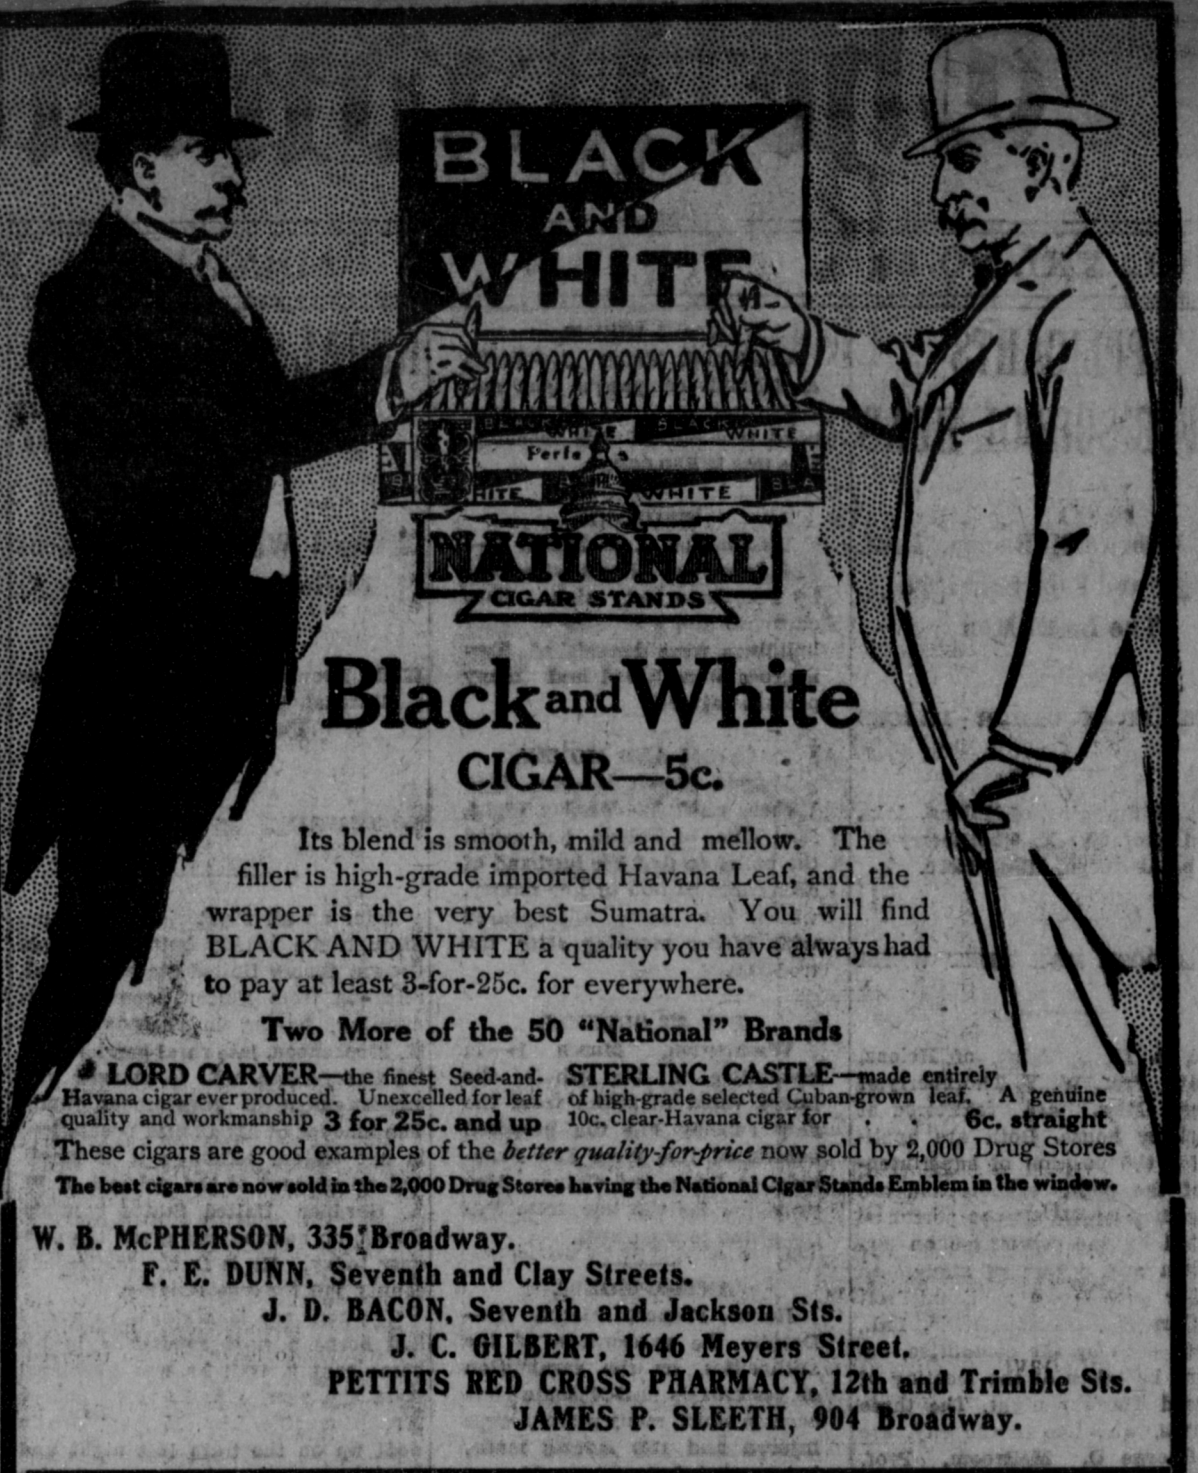

Shelbyville, Ky., March 1.—The last day of the State Farmers' Institute saw a sustained interest in the program and even larger attendance than on previous days. Tobacco interests are foremost today, the Burley Growers' association meeting in connection with the institute this afternoon. President Clarence Lebus, of Cynthiana, will preside at the meeting of the association. The present officers were re-elected unanimously for another year, and are: President, H. M. Froman, Ghent; first vice president, M. O. Hughes, Bowling Green; second vice president, R. K. Hart, Flemingsburg; secretary, Clarence Sale, Louisville; treasurer, C. M. Hanna, Shelbyville.

TO CURE A COUGH.

A noted authority on lung trouble advises that as soon as cold is contracted, the following simple treatment should be given. The ingredients can be purchased from any prescription druggist at small cost and easily prepared in your own home. It is said to be so effective that it will break up a cold in twenty-four hours and cure any cough that is curable.

Take a half ounce Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure), two ounces of Glycerine, and eight ounces of good Whisky. Shake well and take in teaspoonful doses every four hours.

Be sure that the Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) is in the original half ounce vials, which are put up expressly for druggists to dispense. Each vial is securely sealed in a round wooden case, with engraved wrapper, with the name—Virgin Oil of Pine (Pure) Guaranteed under the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906, serial number 451. Prepared only by Leach Chemical Co., Cincinnati, Ohio—plainly printed thereon. Only the adulterated oils are sold in bulk; these create nausea and never effect the desired results.

Chased Man Through Water.

Mayfield, Ky., March 1.—Deputy Sheriff R. B. Wallace, of Wingo, says he will chase a man on the ground, but when it comes to jumping into creeks he draws the line, although he succeeded in serving the necessary legal papers on a young man Tuesday after the latter had waded a stream of water. Officer Wallace had a subpoena for Foster Willingham, of near Cuba, and, after a lively chase of some distance with the officer right on the heels of the fleeing man, the latter leaped into Obion creek almost to his neck. After reaching the opposite shore Officer Wallace read the papers to him while he stood across the stream. Willingham was soaking wet and chilled by the cold waters and lost no time in making a change of clothing while Mr. Wallace was reconciled with his part of the law.

Primary May 4.

Mayfield, Ky., March 1.—Pursuant to a call by Chairman H. A. Coulter, of the Democratic committee, a majority of the committee met at the county court room at the court house. The meeting was called to order by H. A. Coulter, chairman with W. H. Wilman, acting secretary. Saturday, May 4, was the day agreed upon to hold the primary election to nominate a candidate for the legislature. One hundred and seventy-five dollars was decided upon as the amount necessary to pay the expenses of election and owners of houses for election be paid $1 for holding said election. The election is to be held under the law.

Store House Robbed at Cuba.

Mayfield, Ky., March 1.—The large store house of Will P. Stroup burned at Cuba at an early hour Thursday morning. The origin of the fire is unknown as when first discovered about 12 o'clock the interior of the building was in a mass of flames. The stock and house was valued at several thousand dollars, but the exact amount could not be ascertained as Mr. Stroup is in Louisville buying goods for his store. There is known to be insurance to the amount of $4,500, but as to there being any more it is not yet known. The building was a one-story frame structure about 40 by 80 feet. Mr. J. S. Stroup, father of the owner of the store, was in Mayfield Thursday and said that he was thoroughly satisfied that the fire was of incendiary origin, not from enemies of his son, for he thinks he had none, but that the house was first robbed and the torch applied. The door to the store, which Mr. Stroup says he securely fastened before leaving, was found to be open, plainly showing that the house had been entered. Mr. Stroup left the store house early in the evening and left practically no fire in the house. It was safely covered up. The house and stock of goods is valued at over $5,000.

NEW BASEBALL RULES.

New York, March 1.—The new baseball rules were adopted as they came from the committee by the National League. After making some minor changes the committee reported that rule 14 should read, that only the pitcher be allowed to take the glove off a new ball. No other player may do so under a penalty of $5 fine for each offense.

Rule 51 Section 10, pertaining to the manner of the bat, was amended to read that the batsman shall be declared out if he steps from one batsman's box to the other after the pitcher has taken his position in the pitcher's box. Other changes are:

If a catcher interferes with a batsman while striking at a pitched ball, the batsman becomes a baserunner.

If there are two baserunners and one passes another in an endeavor to make a run while the first baserunner is being "tagged," the baserunner who passes is to be declared out.

UNFORTUNATE WOMAN'S STORY

Culpeper, Va., March 1.—In an attempt to save the lives of her brothers, who are on trial for the murder of her husband, Mrs. William Bywaters told in court the story of her downfall. It was so weak that she was wheeled up to the witness stand in an invalid chair, the young widow related a story dramatic in its pathos. She told of her betrayal at the hands of Bywaters, of her awful suffering, her marriage on December 15 last, and the assassination of the man by James and Philip Strother a few minutes after he had been made her husband.

Mrs. Bywaters testified that she was 23 years old and that she had known Bywaters since she was a little child. At that time, she said, he treated her as a brother would. He became more affectionate after her father's death in 1904.

The witness said her improper relations with Bywaters began about four months before her mother's death in 1904.

Yields to Pleas of Love.

When asked how it was that she happened to yield to him, she replied: "I loved him and he said he loved me. He told me he would have a greater love for me, and I believed in him, loved him and had confidence in him and felt that he would marry me as he had promised to do."

When she realized her condition she spoke to Bywaters and he said that she was mistaken. Later Bywaters suggested a criminal operation. She said she had no idea what such an operation meant and she did not know anything else to do. Finally she consented and early in October she went to Washington. The next day she went to a Dr. Leon's office and was operated on.

The operation, she testified, was not successful and two weeks later they returned to Washington and went to see another physician, a Dr. Walters. This one said he could not do anything for her and advised Bywaters and herself to get married.

Mrs. Bywaters testified that Bywaters insisted on a third visit to Washington and she finally consented to go. This time a doctor performed an operation with instruments.

The witness said that although she was suffering from excruciating pain she had to walk from the hotel to the street car, no carriage being provided. After the last operation Bywaters took her to a restaurant on Pennsylvania avenue, about fifteen minutes' walk from the doctor's office. She had nothing to eat there, but Bywaters left her there about an hour and a half while he went to look after some mail.

During Bywaters' absence, the witness testified to having suffered intensely. Questioned as to how she and Bywaters were registered at the hotel she replied: "As man and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Tyson."

Mrs. Bywaters said that Bywaters left her that Friday night, going to Leesburg, Va., to see about some dogs and did not return until 10 o'clock the following night. While he was away on this trip Mrs. Bywaters said that there was no one to do so much for her as to give her a drink of water and gave as a reason for this that she was a stranger.

Mrs. Bywaters testified to going back home where she met one of her brothers, but did not tell him anything. He later spoke to her about the matter, but she denied it. Bywaters also denied their relations, but finally they were obliged to confess.

Pleas for Life of Betrayer.

The witness testified that a meeting was held between Bywaters, her brothers and herself, and she became afraid they were going to kill Bywaters and that she pleaded for his life. During that conversation her brother French said that he did not know that he wanted them to get married. The witness said that she again pleaded with her brothers, and it was her pleading that saved Bywaters' life.

Bywaters said that he would marry her, but even then he wanted to put it off. He left about 5 o'clock that evening, the understanding being that the marriage should take place at a time to be designated by her brothers.

After their marriage, which was performed while she lay ill in bed, she said her brothers kissed her and shook Bywaters' hands.

A few moments before the shooting, she said, Bywaters was seated near the bed and she had one arm around his neck. Her brother James, who was in the room, asked Bywaters what he intended to do, meaning if he intended to leave, but he received no response.

The witness testified that when Mrs. Edward Gaines, her sister, came into the room, Bywaters drew away from her, pulling her out of bed. He then ran down stairs.

"Then what occurred?"

"I was in such a nervous condition that I hardly knew. My mind is almost a blank so far as what occurred is concerned."

"Did you see Bywaters after he jerked away from you?"

"No, sir."

Sister Tells of Shooting.

Mrs. Gaines was put on the stand after Mrs. Bywaters had been cross-examined briefly. While an actual witness to the shooting, Mrs. Gaines displayed but a hazy recollection of the words passed between Bywaters and her brothers in the bedroom immediately before the latter opened fire. She remembered, however, that Philip had fired the first shot as Bywaters rushed past her in an attempt to escape down the back stairway.

The presence of Mr. Gaines in the lower room, she added, prevented flight in that direction and when Gaines forced Bywaters back into the bride's bedroom he made a second attempt to escape, this time through an open window and on to the roof of the rear porch, both James and Philip Strother then opening fire.

She stuck steadfastly to the statement that her brothers had fired most of the shots through the window after Bywaters reached the roof, and not while he was in the room, as the prosecution contends. She declared her belief that the brothers had had no previous intention of killing Bywaters.

KEPT WITHIN LAW IN TAKING FUNDS

New Theory of Theft From Chicago Sub-treasury

St. Louis Decision May Exonerate Thief From Charge of Embezzlement.

LIST OF CASH APPROPRIATED.

Chicago, March 1.—A theft according to law is the latest indication in the mysterious robbery of the Chicago sub-treasury.

Careful students of the situation at the federal building last night reached the conclusion that the man who took $173,000 from the local office had studied the decision in the St. Louis sub-treasury robbery case, where $63,000 was taken, and had made his actions conform in every respect to the ruling of the court in that case so that he might take the money, secrete it and then face the music leaving the government to show that the money had been misappropriated.

The decision in the St. Louis case was that a man who had the care of funds could not be held for embezzlement where the money disappeared from his care, unless it could be shown that he had misappropriated it.

Following this decision, it was pointed out that the man who took the money could face all criticism, stand by his guns, and unless the money was found and the means of its disappearance could be directly traced to him he would be safe.

Think Thief Studied the Law.

This is thought to have been the case here. It is assumed that the man who stole the vast sum studied law in order to make the theft conform to legal requirements.

This aspect of the case has made the government panicky in the fear that the same procedure could be repeated in other cases, and that the public funds are not safe with the Chicago mystery unsolved.

"I have completed my investigation of the books of the sub-treasury. That examination shows that there is no clerical error. The common sense view is that the money was taken by an employee of the office. It is foolish to say that an outsider took the money with a ruler or a stick. We are no nearer a solution of the mystery today than we were last night."

Gideon C. Bantz, deputy treasurer of the United States, last night summed up in these words the theory of the government officials in their quest for the thief who took $173,000 from the Chicago sub-treasury.

All of the officials have apparently centered their suspicions upon one man although four men are being watched.

William Boldenbeck, assistant treasurer, added to the sum of information the statement that the money in the office had all been counted, and that from this count, he was satisfied that the funds taken were as follows:

Thirteen bills, each for $10,000
One bill for 5,000
Thirty-eight bills each for 1,000
This makes a total of $173,000.
Mr. Boldenbeck is positive that the missing bills have been properly listed, and that the amounts stated are correct. With this definite statement from the office as to the character of the money that has been taken renewed efforts were made to trace the big bills.

All night the lone cicada Kept shrilling through the rain—
A voice of joy undaunted
By unforgotten pain.

Down from the wind-blown branches
Rang out the high refrain,
By tumult undisheartened
By storm assailed in vain.

To looming varts of mountain
And shadowy depths of pain,
The ephemeral, brave defiance Adventured not in vain.

Till to the faltering spirit
And to the weary brain,
From loss and fear and failure,
My joy returned again.

PAVED WITH GOLD

Millions of Logs to be Reclaimed from Mississippi River Bed.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Logging operations in Minnesota have now advanced to the point where not only the dead and down timber is utilized to the utmost, but steps are now being taken for the reclamation of the "deadheads" or sunken logs at the bottom of the Mississippi river. Fabulous wealth, represented by the untold number of logs that have been accumulating along the river for decades, awaits the men who reclaim it.

It is believed that the river bottom is literally paved with logs from St. Anthony Falls almost to its source. For the last forty years from 500,000,000 to 600,000,000 feet of logs have been floated down the river and the number that have gone to the bottom is beyond estimating. For more than 250 miles the bottom of the river is lined with logs.

It has been demonstrated that logs may be raised with great profit. Wallace A. Burt and others have been contemplating for some time the advisability of hoisting these logs, and with that object in view have laid their plans before a number of the leading lumbermen. The plan is to raise the logs by hoisting engines and land them ashore, where a government official will scale and record the marks found on them. When the original owner can be found he will be compensated for the logs at the rate of $8 a thousand feet. This represents just so much "velvet" to the owners and still leaves a margin of profit to the hoisters, who can find ready market for the reclaimed logs.

logs at from $12 to $14 a thousand feet.

The logs that became deadheads or "sunkers" are chiefly of the small Norway pine variety, known to the lumbermen as "pig-iron" Norway. They seldom get to be more than eight to twelve inches through at the butt and are heavy and soggy. Rivermen say that a great number of these sink before leaving the landing, a few of them deadhead it down stream for a way, one end bobbing above water until, thoroughly water soaked, they sink to rise no more. Some of these bidders succeed in reaching the mills, but a large percentage of them go to the bottom.

Child a Living Rainbow.

York, being treated for a strange affection. The child's body is freckled with every color of the rainbow, which at times changes in color, grow ing brighter in the sunshine and having the appearance of roughly drawn birds and animals. The disease is said to be caused by a germ in the blood which causes rheumatism, and is called peupura haemorrhagica. The child does not suffer any great pain and eats heartily and plays with the other children. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Elgholz have ever had rheumatism and a great-grandmother of the child's is the only relative ever having had it. But little progress has been made in benefitting the little patient.

That happiness is found only when you look within not without.

I then tried another standard cough cure, but with no better results than with the expectorant. I was then recommended by a druggist at Georgetown, Va., to try Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey and after using one 25c bottle I was completely cured. POLICE AND THE LAW.

O, How our sins do find us out!
There was something extraordinarily pernicious in the charter tinkering by which the expense of maintaining an enlarged police force, established by act of the legislature, was saddled on the taxpayers of Paducah, especially when engineered by representatives of that party, which has clung to the theory of local self-government as a fetish after losing every other attribute of its ancient self. And, now, we see the Democratic press throwing this fact into the face of the police department in rebuke for alleged inefficiency, and one candidate for mayor coming out on a platform, advocating a closed town and the repeal of the amendment.We feel that Col. Joseph E. Potter has incorporated too many misfit planks in his platform for success, but we accord him this one commendation—he is the first candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor to state his position, and the only one, who thus far has intimated an intention to let the people know where he stands.Categorically Col. Potter stands for the "enforcement of the laws;"
"the closing of all lawless places;"
"the repeal of the amendment to the charter, compelling Paducah to have 30 policemen."Somehow the conviction steals over us when we read this that some Democrats believe the city is wide open, and that it has come to Col.
Potter's ears that all Democrats do not like the 30 policemen act. It is also deducible from Col. Potter's first three planks, that he thinks some of his opponents before the primary are for a wide open town. And here's a hint for some of the others to announce their positions on municipal questions.There is, too, a relation between the first three planks of Col. Potter's platform and the police department; because it was repeatedly asserted by the Democratic press that the Republican general council had crippled the police force, and that an epidemic of lawlessness was fostered by this condition. All criticisms of open saloons were met with the answer that the depleted police force was unable to patrol the city.The augmented police force, the minimum established at the behest of the men at the head of the police department, has been on duty twomonths. Now, listen to the Democratic organ of last Wednesday:Considerable complaint is heard from those who leave on the Sunday train for Mayfield of the boisterousness and intoxicated condition of many of the passengers, who, having spent Sunday in Paducah, are returning home, having unmistakable evidence of the fact that they had been able to secure intoxicating liquor while in Paducah.The Mayfield Messenger has frequently made reference to this, and it is beyond our understanding where they can purchase these liquid refreshments.
Our police force is sufficient to discover if any saloons are open.
* * * Of course this is precautionary and we wish this warning to be sounded broadcast for the protection of the law-abiding and reputable saloon keepers. We are pleased to state that we have many in our community, but at the same time, there are no doubt a few who have not the slightest regard for law and order and keep open, and when these saloons are discovered the policeman on sabbath is evidently not giving the proper attention to his duties and should be promptly dismissed. There can be no valid excuse for the sale of liquor on Sunday in Paducah, and no valid excuse if same is not promptly discovered by our police force.It was nice for the Democratic organ to apologize to everybody for mentioning this, and its compliment to the saloon men, who obey the law, is delicate. They are entitled to as much credit for not violating the Sunday closing law, as the editor of the Democratic organ and the editor of THE SUN are for not committing arson. Under the circumstances we feel more like congratulating those fellows who do keep open on Sunday.It gives us delight to see our Democratic contemporary nurling in the teeth of the police department the fact, that it has all the men asked for and enough to enforce the law.
We hesitated to come out so vigorously. We knew we would be hauled on the carpet and the demand made on us that we prove there is Sunday selling in Paducah. Naturally, when one sees men staggering drunk on the streets Sunday night, and sees gamblers, who never did anything else for a living, loafing in front of their old haunts, he is inclined to presume that the town is wide open; but this is not proof.It is possible the Democratic organ is doing the police injustice.
They may be so busy hunting for the three men, who murdered three white men in Paducah in the last twelve months and escaped, that they haven't time to watch side doors.
Then, what an indictment of the patrolmen, who do not close the saloons on their beats! It demands that they be dismissed. Wonder if the Democratic organ ever heard of a policeman being dismissed for what Grover Cleveland would apply term "pernicious activity."If we saw the relation of Sunday liquor selling to the augmented police force the way the Democratic organ sees it, we would take the stand Col. Potter has taken; and, if we took the stand Col. Potter has taken, we would feel inconsistent if we did not join the Republican party in the coming struggle.Dr. Emil Hirsch, of Chicago, has offered his body to a medical institution, when he is through with it.
That is an easier way of aiding the cause of science than giving up one's life to it; but we believe a man, who is willing to have his poor, discarded temple of clay mutilated, after he leaves it, would be of unique pathological interest.Riverside hospital must not be allowed to suffer for lack of funds.
Questions of life and death are more important than a few thousand dollars.Col. Joseph E. Potter failed to state in his platform, whether he is in favor of reducing the force of "cow policemen."Says the Owensboro Messenger: Quite a showing for Breathitt and it is doubtful—and to be commended—if another county in Kentucky, size and population considered, could make the same showing. The grand jury for the little county has returned indictments for murder, four in number; two indictments for housebreaking; one indictment for malicious shooting and is investigating a charge of arson.
Quite so. Once Breathitt county was the banner criminal county of Kentucky; but Caldwell county has robbed her of her former glory. That, perhaps, is what induced Breathitt to reform. Caldwell county has between 300 and 500 criminals, who ought to be in the penitentiary, not only running at large, but actually intimidating the authorities of the county.

TARIFF REVISION.

John Sharp Williams cannot write even about a solemn subject like the tariff without indulging his propensity for plantation humor. Imagine the snickered expression that must have pervaded the genteel face of his excellency the governor of Massachusetts, when he came upon this passage in a letter to him from Mr.
Williams upon the petition of the general court to the source of wisdom at Washington praying for revision:
"In my opinion, you might just as well look to a bald-headed barber for an effective hair restorer as to look to the Republican party for any revision of the tariff in the direction of freer trade relations with the world."Gov. Guild is enlisted for the war, of course—free hides, free coal and all those things in which the honorable and progressive business men of Massachusetts are interested; but as a high toned Republican this tongorial simile at the expense of the organization by an unpollished Southern Democrat must almost have convinced him that the tariff was a local and not a party issue.At the same time, tradition and fealty aside, the governor may have derived more satisfaction from the blunt opinion of Mr. Williams upon revision than from the empty compliments of his great and good friend at Washington. The Democratic leader claimed copyright so far as the house of representatives was concerned, upon the idea of a maximum and minimum tariff. But, he said:"As the doctrine is sought to be managed by Mr. McCleary, Senator Lodge and others, it is, I take it, a new one to everybody. If Senator Lodge takes the same view of it that Representatives McCleary, Cannon and Dazell do, and I have understood that he does, namely: That the minimum tariff should be the present law and that a maximum tariff should be something larger by an agreed percentage."Mr. Williams would have the present tariff stand as the maximum and revise downward, applying the maximum rates to imports from countries discriminating against us and letting down the bars to countries that legislate in a reciprocity, and against punitive retaliation.When Mr. Williams introduced the doctrine of a maximum and minimum tariff to the house of representatives is not generally known, but the date of the president's pronouncement on it is no mystery. He commended it to congress in his message in December, 1905, but was not desperately in earnest about the matter. This was his language:"It should be considered whether it is not desirable that the tariff laws should provide for applying as against or in favor of any nation maximum and minimum tariff rates established by the congress, so as to secure a certain reciprocity of treatment between other nations and ourselves."Since that time Mr. Roosevelt has not troubled himself about the tariff, and his letter to Gov. Guild implies that revision is a "closed incident" so far as his administration is concerned. Whether he is for Cannon maximum rates and Dingey minimum rates must remain hidden from the general intelligence as long as railroad supervision engages his attention to the exclusion of tariff revision.—New York Sun.Place your orders for wedding

FROM PADUCAH

WAS UNFORTUNATE VICTIM OF PARKER HOUSE FIRE.Graves County Man Saw Another Person Accompanying Victim to Mayfield.Mayfield, Ky., March 1.—A man who lives south of the city and whose name is withheld by request, was in the city Wednesday and told a reporter that on the Sunday evening that the party who was burned in a boarding house on West Broadway was from Paducah, that he was at the depot in Paducah, and that the man who afterwards was burned, said to some men who were standing around,
"let's have a drink." He says that several went and drank with him, and he told them that he was going to Mayfield, and one man in the crowd said that he would come with him. He says they got on the train, and that the next morning, the man who came out with him went back in a buggy, and stopped at a house near Paducah and ate his breakfast and paid for it out of a five dollar bill, and that the horses were much fatigued. He says the farmer at whose house the party got breakfast on Monday morning, knew the man and knew that it was the same man who came to this city with the party on Sunday evening that was burned in the fire. For reasons of his own he refused to tell the name of the parties, but said that he had told the proper authorities.

He Disagrees With Dr. Osler.

In the autobiography of a Business Man," in the February Everybody's, the author remarks:"I have in my store a number of men past forty-five. Some of them are merchants who have failed in business yet they make splendid employees. I would rather hire a man past forty-five that has had experience—and he will have experience at that time of life—than hire a young man who does not appreciate his position. His mind is on Saturday night, pay night, and watching the clock. The forty-five-year-old—yes, the forty-five-year-old and the sixty —appreciates his position; appreciates being used like a man, being treated with respect. These men of forty-five years of age rarely leave me, and I never yet have had occasion to discharge but one of my senior and that was one poor unfortunate that I simply could not reform."

A Troubled Father.

In a certain mountain town in Kentucky the feeling began to grow that the "grocery saloon," where liquor was sold as commonly as vinegar and kerosene, must go, and when a customer came into the store to procure the precious liquor he was sometimes called on to make an excuse or apology, says Harper's Weekly. There were some interesting excuses offered, and one in particular is told of a mountaineer who went into a store and, laying down his jug on the counter, said: "Squire I want a gallon of your best stuff; the baby is sick."

What Osteopathy Will Do.

There are but few people who have not heard of Osteopathy, also of some of its achievements. But there are far too many who have accredited it with being good for only those conditions from which they have been cured, or which have come under their observation. Not infrequently there is mutual surprise when one who was cured of rheumatism meets another who has been cured of asthma or constipation. This is a homely, but very true illustration.Personally, I have cured chronic cases of constipation, rheumatism, asthma, nervousness, neuralgia and headaches for people whom you know well, and the value of the Osteopathic treatment is but coming generally known in Paducah, as it should be.I should like to talk with you at any time about your particular case, and know I can cite you to some of your friends who will attest to what the treatment has done for them in similar diseases. Come to my office,

PEOPLE AND SOCIAL EVENTS

Children's Feast of Purim Ball.

A very beautiful festivity was the annual dance last evening of the children of the Temple Israel Sabbath school in celebration of the Feast of Purim. It was held at the Standard club rooms on Broadway and was given by the ladies of the congregation. The rooms were effectively decorated with flags, strings of popcorn flowers and plants. Refreshments were served and each child was given a pretty souvenir basket filled with candy.

The children were in fancy costume which added to the charm of the scene. The characters represented were varied and were carried out with spirit and originality. The costumes were pretty and unique. The prize for the most striking girl's costume was given to Rosa Klein, who represented a Violet Girl. Master Joseph Rosenthal, as a cripple Italian organ grinder, was a perfect impersonation and captured the boy's prize.

The prize for the best couple was taken by Masters Will I. Levy and James Morris Friedman as the Gold Dust Twins. Their costumes were perfect in detail and created much amusement. They wore black tights with white pleated ruffle. A tin dish pan was on the head of one and a tin coffee pot on the other. Each carried a freshly scrubbed shiny tin pan, in evidence of the power of Gold Dust.

There were 57 children who took part in the ball.

More Cigarettes Than Ever.

For a number of years past we have had a violent popular agitation against cigarettes and many states have thought it desirable to enact strenuous legislation as to their manufacture, sale and use. How ineffectual all this has been may be inferred from the report that the sale of cigarettes in the United States in 1906 exceeded that of the preceding year by 851,000,000. This makes a record in the sale of these articles. There was also an increase of about a million pounds in the importations of Turkish tobacco, largely used in cigarette making.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MISS ADELAIDE NICHOLS

PERIODS OF PAIN

While no woman is entirely free from periodic suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. Irregularities and pain are positive evidence that something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to serious derangement of the feminine organism.

Thousands of women, have found relief from all periodic suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs that period of its terrors. Women who are troubled with painful or irregular functions should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Miss Adelaide Nichols of 324 West 22nd Street, New York City, writes:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—“If women who suffer would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound their troubles would be quickly alleviated. I feel greatly indebted for the relief and health which has been brought to me by your inestimable remedy.” Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints such as Falling and Displacements, and Organic Diseases, Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole feminine system. For the derangements of the Kidneys of either sex Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

Hon. James Bryce.

The appointment of the Right Honorable James Bryce, the Chief Secretary of Ireland, as British Ambassador to the United States is one of those signally fitting and ideal things which sometimes occur in the imperfect world of politics. “The right man in the right place” is the universal expression of approval that is rising on both sides of the sea. What ever diverse opinion may exist as to Mr. Bryce's political philosophy there is only one opinion as to his character, which commands universal respect. It would indeed be difficult to select an example of a more lofty and irreproachable character among the great statesmen of England. It is the man more than the author, scholar, or statesman, who is so thoroughly admired; and in becoming a member of the diplomatic Corps at Washington he will confer, probably, more honor than he will receive. Certainly no man ever came to America upon a diplomatic mission with so many manifestations of regard and cordial welcome.

Mr. Bryce belongs to that class of philosophical and political thinkers of which John Morley and Goldwin Smith are eminent types. Highly versatile, of vast general learning and experience, he has been free from all tendencies of the overspecialized man of intellect. His personal as well as his public character have sufficed to make him one of the heroes of his generation. As an intellectual leader he ranks with the foremost of European thinkers, and as an Englishman he typifies the man of pure and noble spirit. —The Book News Monthly for February.

Old Circus Man Tells of The Big Horn Survivor

If there are methods in madness there certainly are principles of operation among fakirs. Haphazardness cannot bring success in any undertaking, whether honest or dishonest, and in a study of the methods of fakirs as revealed through the personal reminiscences of the Mountaineer, it is apparent that the fakir with the “longest” head on him, is the one who reaps the greatest spoils. Detectives know of the systems of signs and emblems used among tramps by which they convey to one another information useful to them in their life. So among fakirs, a well-developed system of approaching a town with the intention of working a game on its citizens, always is found and failure and consequent detection come only when their plans have not been well-laid, or unavoidably were interrupted.

“There are three meeting places between fakirs,” commented the Mountaineer, “and you can always depend on finding your partner at one of them. They are the court house, the leading hotel or the post office. And if you don't find him there—”

“Yep,” continued the Mountaineer. “If he ain't at one of those three places you go to the jail and you'll sure find him: cause if he couldn't meet you at the regular places, after the game has been worked, it's a sure sign he's been caught by the sheriff. Fakirs don't do things blindly. Me and Bill Lewis came near gettin' caught in one of the western towns down by the Mexican border. After we'd worked the ‘stump water’ racket on that territory town, we strayed on down south. We didn't have so much trouble gettin' out of that town ‘cause it would take some little time for the people to get on to the game, as they wouldn't probably need the medicine right then.”

“We got dead broke again and Bill was pretty high frustrated he was so hard up. Just before we went in to this town, we struck up with a half-breed fellow who had the awful scar down the side of his face. I ever see, it began up on top of his head and went clean down under his chin. Bill hadn't more than seen him before an idea struck him and he stopped the fellow. Course, I didn't know what his game was but I'd learnt to depend on Bill bein' common sense. I just waited developments.”

“Bill parleyed with the fellow a few moments and struck up a bargain with him to come with us. We went on into town and Bill walked up to the leading hotel like he owned the world. We'd found out the fellow could walk a tight rope—so Bill got the clerk of the hotel to let him stretch a rope across to the other side of the street. Then Bill got up on a box and began to spiel. The town was full of traders and cut-throats and I didn't like the looks of things a little bit. At that time it was about ten years after Custer's last stand battle and western towns was anything but paradises.

“Bill started off by painting a harrowing picture of that battle, and told how the redskins had massacred everybody there. ‘But Gentlemen, I have here, with me,’ he said ‘before your eyes, the one and only survivor of that great battle. This man after fighting until all his comrades had bit the dust jerked a redskin off his horse and escaped. You can see for yourselves that he bears the mark of that horrible fight. Gentlemen, look at this scar. It was the parting stab of the Indian whose horse he took, and he'll carry it to the grave. But I did not get up here to tell you about his heroic part in that battle. I'm here on a mission of mercy. I'm here solely to appeal to your generous hearts as brave men to help this poor man get home to his dying mother. Listen, I have in my hand, a telegram. It's from his poor old mother who lives in California and she's urging him to come home to her before she dies.’”

“Then Bill read the most pathetic telegram you ever heard. You, see, fakirs always carry blank telegrams with them to fill out as they need. Bill wrote the telegram like he wanted it before we went into town, and he had a dozen more in his pocket. Telegrams are mighty handy sometimes.”

“After Bill read the telegram, he said: ‘Now, Gentlemen, while this poor fellow gives you an exhibition of his remarkable ability as a tight rope walker, my friend here,’ meaning me, ‘will pass his hat around for a collection to send this poor man to his dying mother. I beg you for his sake, men, to be liberal.’”

“Bill took the money and gave it to the hero of Custer's last stand. Then he said, ‘If you'll gather here at the same time tomorrow, I'll Senator and Page.

Senator Tillman sees more with his one eye than many men see with two, but nevertheless those who see the fiery Southerner cannot avoid noticing his misfortune. The other day he clapped his hands for a page, from the cloakroom door. A new page, who had not yet mastered the senatorial names, responded.

“Tell Senator Clay,” he said, “that I want to see him in the cloak-room.”

The page ran on the errand, on his way stopping to ask the head usher where Senator Clay sat. Then he asked: “Who's this that has only one eye?”

The usher thinking it a question in mythology, replied: “Why, Cyclops, of course.”

The page delivered his errand in this astounding way:

“Senator Cyclopes wants to see you in the cloak-room.”—March Lip-pincott's.

CHAPTER XX.

ON the fifth day after the momentous 1st of April on which he had recalled Loder and resumed his own life Chilcote left his house and walked toward Bond street. Though the morning was clear and the air almost warm for the time of year, he was buttoned into a long overcoat and was wearing a muffler and a pair of doekin gloves. As he passed along the street he kept close to the house fronts to avoid the sun that was everywhere stirring the winter bound town like a suffusion of young blood through old veins. He avoided the warmth because in this instance warmth meant light, but as he moved he shivered slightly from time to time with the haunting, permeating cold that of late had become his persistent shadow.

He was ill at ease as he hurried forward. With each succeeding day of the old life the new annoyances, the new obligations, became more hampering. Before his compact with Loder this old life had been a net about his feet. Now the meshes seemed to have narrowed, the net itself to have spread till it smothered his whole being. His own household, his own rooms even, offered no sanctuary. The presence of another personality tinged the atmosphere. It was preposterous, but it was undeniable. The lay figure that he had set in his place had proved to be flesh and blood, had usurped his life, his position, his very personality, by sheer right of strength. As he walked along Bond street in the first sunshine of the year, jostled by the well dressed crowd, he felt a pariah.

He revolted at the new order of things, but the revolt was a silent one—the iron of expediency had entered into his soul. He dared not jeopardize Loder's position because he dared not displease. With Loder. The door that guarded his vice drew him more resis-tlessly with every indulgence, and Loder's was the voice that called the "open sesame."

He walked on aimlessly. He had been but five days at home, and already the quiet, grass grown court of Clifford's Inn, the bare staircase, the comfortless privacy of Loder's rooms, seemed a haven of refuge. The speed with which this hunger had returned frightened him.

He walked forward rapidly and without encountering a check. Then suddenly the spell was broken. From the stately, moving, brilliantly dressed thrang of people some one called him by his name, and, turning, he saw Lillian Astrup.

She was stepping from the door of a jeweler's, and as he turned she paused, holding out her hand.
"The very person I would have wished to see," she exclaimed. "Where have you been these hundred years?
I've heard of nobody but you since you've turned politician and ceased to be a mere member of parliament." She laughed softly. The laugh suited the light spring air, as she herself suited the pleasant, superficial scene.

He took her hand and held it, while his eyes traveled from her delicate face to her pale cloth gown, from her soft furs to the bunch of roses fastened in her muff. The sight of her was a curious relief. Her cool, slim fingers were so casual, yet so clinging; her voice and her presence were so redolent of easy, artificial things.

"How well you look!" he said involuntarily.
Again she laughed. "That's my prerogative," she responded lightly. "But I was serious in being glad to see you.
Sarcastic people are always so intrusive. I'm looking for some one with intuition."

Chilcote glanced up. "Extravagant again," he said dryly.
She smiled at him sweetly. "Jack,"
she murmured, with slow reproach.
Chilcote laughed quickly. "I understand. You've changed your minister of finance. I've wanted in some other direction."

This time her reproach was expressed by a glance. "You are always winded," she said.
The words seemed to rouse him again to the shadowy self distrust that the sight of her had lifted.

"It's—it's delightful to meet you like this," he began, "and I wish the meeting wasn't momentary. But I'm—I'm rather pressed for time. You must let me come round one afternoon—or evening, when you're alone." He fumbled for a moment with the collar of his coat and glanced furtively upward toward Oxford street.

But again Lillian smiled, this time to herself. If she understood anything on earth, it was Chilcote and his moods.
"If one may be careless of anything, Jack," she said lightly, "surely it's of time. I can imagine being pressed for anything else in the world. If it's an appointment you're worrying about, a motor goes over so much faster than a cab." She looked at him tentatively, her head slightly on one side, her muff raised till the roses and some of the soft fur touched her cheek.

She looked very charming and very persuasive as Chilcote glanced back.
Again she seemed to represent a respite—something graceful and subtle in a world of oppressive obligations.
His eyes strayed from her figure to the smart motor car drawn up beside the curb.

She saw the glance. "Ever so much quicker," she insinuated. And, smiling again, she stepped forward from the door of the shop. After a second's indecision Chilcote followed her.

The waiting car had three seats, one in front for the chauffeur, two visa-vis at the back, offering pleasant possibilities of a tete-a-tete.

"The park—and drive slowly," Lillian ordered as she stepped inside, motioning Chilcote to the seat opposite.
They moved up Bond street smoothly and rapidly. Lillian was absorbed in the passing traffic until the Marble arch was reached; then, as they glided across the big gates, she looked across at her companion. He had turned up the collar of his coat, though the wind was scarcely perceptible, and buried himself in it to the ears.

"It is extraordinary," she exclaimed suddenly as her eyes rested on his face. It was seldom that she felt drawn to exclamation. She was usually too indolent to show surprise. But now the feeling was called forth before she was aware.

Chilcote looked up. "What's extraordinary?" he said sensitively.

She leaned forward for an instant and touched his hand.
"Bear!" she said teasingly. "Did I rub your fur the wrong way?" Then, seeing his expression, she tactfully changed her tone. "I'll explain. It was the same thing that struck me the night of Blanchette's party—when you looked at me over Leonard Kaine's head. You remember?" She glanced away from him across the park to where the grass was already showing greener.

Chilcote felt ill at ease. Again he put his hand to his coat collar.
"Oh, yes," he said hastily; "yes." He wished now that he had questioned Loder more closely on the proceedings of that party. It seemed to him on looking back that Loder had mentioned nothing on the day of their last exchange but the political complications that absorbed his mind.

"I couldn't explain then," Lillian went on. "I couldn't explain before a crowd of people that it wasn't your dark head showing over Leonard's red one that surprised me, but the most wonderful, the most extraordinary likeness." She paused.

The car was moving slower. There was a delight in the easy motion through the fresh, early air. But Chilcote's uneasiness had been aroused.
He no longer felt soothed.
"What likeness?" he asked sharply.
She turned to him easily. "Oh, a likeness I have noticed before," she said. "A likeness that always seemed strange, but that suddenly became incredible at Blanchette's party."

He moved quickly. "Likenesses are an illusion," he said, "a mere imagination of the brain." His manner was short; his annoyance seemingly out of all proportion to the cause. Lillian looked at him at first in slightly interested surprise.

"Yet not so very long ago, yourself!" she began.
"Nonsense!" he broke in. "I've always denied likeness. Such things don't really exist. Likeness seeing is purely an individual matter—a preconception." He spoke fast. He was uneasy under the cool scrutiny of her green eyes. And with a sharp attempt at self control and reassurance he altered his voice. "After all, we're being very stupid!" he exclaimed. "We're worrying over something that doesn't exist."

Lillian was still lightly interested. To her own belief she had seen Chilcote last on the night of her sister's reception. Then she had been too preoccupled to notice either his manner or his features, though superficially it had lingered in her mind that he had seemed unusually reliant, unusually well on that night. A remembrance of the impression came to her now as she studied his face, upon which impercep-tibly and yet relentlessly his vice was setting its mark, in the dull restlessness of eye, the unhealthy sallowness of skin.

SHIP SUBSIDY IS IN STORMY WATER

Strong Attacks Made on Some of Its Provisions

Pacific Items Probably Will Be Eliminated and Others Cut Down Considerably.

MORE SPEECHES ARE COMING

Washington, D. C., March 1.—The ship subsidy bill will enter upon stormy seas. It will be battered upon the rocky shoals that protect the promised land of public funds.

To reach the long sought haven Pilot Grosvenor expects today it will be necessary to throw overboard the interests of Harriman, Hill and Spreckels, saving only those subsidies which relate to Central and South America, as follows:

New York to Buenos Ayres $800,000
New York to Rio de Janeiro 600,000 San Francisco to Valparaiso do 600,000
New Orleans to Colon 150,000

It is possible there may be a reduction in grants to Central and South American lines, but this is not at all certain in view of the ignorance prevailing in the house as to the conditions under which the steamships operate. Representative Wilson of Chicago who made a speech in which he exposed the corrupt and defective features of the subsidy bill, will offer several amendments, one of which will deal with the amount of subsidy that should be paid. He will show by the production of figures based upon the operating expenses of vessels now engaged in West Indian and Central American trade, that the proposed subsidy is out of all proportion to the benefit that will accrue therefrom to the United States, and will be nothing more nor less than a gift of $3,600,000 to each line obtaining contracts in case the bill should be enacted into law.

Simple Gift to Lines.
Taking the steamer Marro Castle of the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship company as an illustration, Mr. Wilson will show that if it were put into South American trade its total expenses, excluding wear and tear, insurance, and other minor charges would amount to $17,666.66 per trip. The subsidy granted by the Littauer bill is $33,333.33 per trip, so that the profit on one voyage would be $15,672.23. All the charges for freight and all passenger fares would be so much additional profit for the company.

As the bill requires each line to make 24 trips a year, Mr. Wilson figures the annual profits at $376,- 135.52, or $3,761,455.20 for the ten years during which the contract would run.
The members of congress to whom Mr. Wilson has communicated his information, even those who are counted upon by General Grosvenor to vote for the bill, admit such a subsidy is exorbitant. Mr. Wilson and other members will make an effort to have the house reduce the subsidy to a more reasonable basis. It is not at all certain, however, they will succeed.

While General Grosvenor as a last resort will relinquish his advocacy of subsidies of Harriman, Hill and Spreckels, he will fight with bared teeth for the amounts provided for South American lines by the Littauer bill.

Speaker Cannon On the Alert.
Fortunately Speaker Cannon is alive to the importance of observing the pledge Grosvenor made upon the floor of the house that the measure passed by the house would be substantially that presented to the president for approval. It can be said the speaker will resist any material change and will use his influence to cause the bill to fall, should it be passed by conferees. If Mr. Cannon should be derelict in this respect, then several senators will take a stand against the footing of the treasury.

Rooseveltian Spelling.
A small citizen of Springfield, Massachusetts, made out a list of things he hoped to receive for his approach-

How to Make a Flying Machine.

"Now that the Wright brothers have made a successful flying machine," says the Technical World Magazine for March, "it is natural that this new departure should attract the attention of a great many unscientific people who are interested enough to try a few experiments of their own. Not all, however, care to hurry life insurance along by testing man-carrying machines. Here is another line of endeavor for such."
"Everybody has seen a bird soar and a few observers have spent a good deal of time and energy wondering how it is done. If they never tried to imitate they are probably still wondering for mere watching the birds will never teach us to fly. A machine that will imitate the birds and give to a beginner his first lesson in flying is easily made out of inexpensive materials."

Tuberculosis Leads Other Diseases in Mortality Report of Government

Washington, March 1.—The mortality census report, which has just been presented to congress, shows that more than 500,000 lives were offered up as a sacrifice to disease in the United States in 1905, based on returns from only two-fifths of the population.

Startling as this death rate may seem, it is less than that for the preceding year, but is in excess of the number of deaths registered for any one year. This death rate is lower than that of Ireland, Germany and Italy for the same period, but higher than that of England and Wales, Scotland and the Netherlands.

The deaths from nephritis and Bright's disease, apoplexy, cancer, diabetes and appendicitis are increasing, while those from old age, bronchitis, convulsions, peritonitis and scarlet fever are decreasing.

The greatest death rate recorded for any one disease in 1905 was that from pulmonary tuberculosis amounting to 56,770, while pneumonia follows closely with a death rate of 39,068, exclusive of broncho-pneumonia. The much dreaded cancer shows a steadily growing death rate, the figures being 24,330.

Report is Restricted in Area.
 The statistics in this report are restricted to states in which the laws requiring the registration of deaths have been accepted as giving practically complete mortality returns, and to cities in non-registration states in which satisfactory returns are required by the local authorities.

This registration area in 1905 consisted of ten registration states, the District of Columbia and 123 registration cities in non-registration states. The ten registration states were Connecticut, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont. The population of the entire area in 1900 was 30,765,618, representing 40.5 per cent of the total population of the United States. Of this number 19,960,742 persons, or 26.3 per cent of the total population, were in registration states, and 10,804,876 persons, or 14.2 per cent, were in registration cities in non-registration states.

The total number of deaths reported from the various kinds of diseases in 1905 aggregated 561,533 and those for the preceding year 561,354. On a percentage basis the death rate was in 1905 16.2 in each thousand of population.

Tuberculosis Most Deadly.
 The causes, with their rates to which twenty or more deaths per 100,000 of population were attributed in 1905, ranked, according to number of deaths per 100,000, are as follows:

Tuberculosis of lungs, 168.2; pneumonia, 150.1; heart disease, 132.5; diarrhoea and enteritis, 116.7; nephritis and Bright's disease, 14.3; apoplexy, 72.2; cancer, 72.1; accidental traumas, 41.1; old age, 36.4; meningitis, 34.5; bronchitis, 33.6; premature birth, 32.9; congenital debility, 31.5; typhoid fever, 28.1, and diphtheria and croup, 23.8.

The report discusses the prejudice of physicians in reporting tuberculosis of the lungs, and states that they often report some other disease in its stead. It is stated that there are deaths undoubtedly attributable to this disease, but not returned as such.

Cancer ranks seventh among the various causes of death. Deaths from this disease occur principally in advancing age, between the years of 60 and 64.

The road to pleasure is much shorter going than coming back.

How Josephine Daskam Bacon Got Her Piano Tuned.

Josephine Daskam Bacon, the short story writer, is publishing articles on the servant problem in the American Magazine. In March number she pitches into American women for their alleged incapability to save time and money by co-operation. As evidence, she submits this story:

"I spent one summer in an expensive (in the sense of paying average prices for less than averages results) and inaccessible spot frequented by a number of women who were, in their own opinion, at least, far above the average in culture and keenness. In justice to them it must be added that they really were above the average, though perhaps not so far as they told each other. They had almost all some public interest beyond the simple domestic. They were broad-minded, they were particularly impressed with the community aspect of their settlement, and jealously interested in its welfare.

"Knowing that many of them were musical and had carried pianos, at some expense, to their summer cottages, I inquired hopefully, when my rented piano required tuning, where one looked for a tuner, and was vexed to find that the nearest man was two hours away, and not very good or very cheap. Learning that two and possibly three owners of valuable pianos had been heard to mention the necessity of getting them tuned in the near future, I thought my way was plain before me and posted in the little gathering place of the community, and in the tiny post-office, a notice asking any one who required a tuner to sign below, with a view to importing one from New York. I did not mention any special tuner—I would have been glad to pay my share of any first-class tuner's time, and with a day's work he would have been expensive. But no one signed the paper. Later I found that we each imported one—I am happy to say I have been able to forget what I paid.

I inquired of one of the genial goosies of the community if she had heard any one speak of the notice.

"Oh, yes," she answered me, "Mrs. X—and Mrs. Z—wanted their tuned, you know. They each got a man from town. They said that co-operative scheme was just like you—so original and literary!"

Mark Twain Obeyed the Scriptures.
 In the Iowa town where Mark Twain used to reside, the following story of him is occasionally handed about:

One morning when he was busily at work an acquaintance dropped in upon him, with the request that he take a walk, the acquaintance having an errand on a pleasant country road.

"How far is it?" temporized Mark Twain.

"Oh, about a mile," replied the friend.

Instantly the humorist gathered his papers together, laid them aside, and prepared to leave his desk.

"Of course I will go," he announced: "The Bible says I must."

"Why, what in the world has the Bible got to do with it?" asked the puzzled friend.

"It distinctly commands," answered Mr. Clemens, "if a man ask thee to go with him a mile, go with him, Twain!"—March Lippincott's.

We and Our Servants.

Josephine Daskam Bacon, the famous short story writer, begins a series of articles on "The Servant Problem" in the February number of the American Magazine. She says that the problem must be worked out by the upper middle financial class (of which class Miss Bacon frankly admits she is). This class is composed of those "who keep only a few servants."

After presenting a spirited description of the housekeeper's present predicament the author takes up some "grand and flighty theories and proves their weakness. Incidentally she shows how much men think they know about the matter and how little they really do know. Mrs. Bacon's satire is always delightful. Then the author makes some remarkable revelations about women's ideas of loyalty and other things. She also produces and criticizes some interesting letters of recommendation written by women.

Proceeding to practical suggestions, Mrs. Bacon makes several points that are really of great importance. Her discussion of the necessity for standardizing domestic service is certainly very able and interesting:

"Until every woman stops having different ways until, in other words, we have effected the Standardization of Domestic Service in the upper middle classes, we shall have no hold on the situation as a whole.

"I mean by this, for instance, that every woman whose means warrant her in employing a waitress, as distinct from a cook, should have her table served in one way—the proper way. The duties of the chambermaid are as obvious as those of a sales-clerk, a rubber in a Turkish bath or a stenographer. A woman has no more reason for making her bed in an individual, and unusual way than for brushing her teeth in an individual and unusual way—either process should properly class her immediately as an invalid or a crank—and both these persons should pay extra for special services. The higher the class of service the more does this rule apply. The best hotels, the best clubs, the most elaborately appointed private establishments all resemble each other the most closely, and deviation from an accepted standard marks the lower grade at once. Of what possible advantage is it to any domestic employee to fit herself for her business if, in every place she may enter, she is confused and bullied into a different set of methods by the aggressive and meddling American housekeeper?"

"Does some woman say 'but we cannot all afford first-class service?' 'Very well, then, let her not pay for it without getting it, as she is probably doing now. Every man knows that an $8 a week stenographer cannot be expected to equal one who commands $20—but he also has a general idea of what he may expect for $8 which is not true of the housekeeper. There is a perfectly justifiable market for untrained, clumsy but willing service—but it is third-class service and it should be employed and paid for as such."

TRY A SUN WANT AD

Very few people appreciate the great value of the small want ads in the newspapers :: :: ::

Some of the Things The Sun's Have Done

Very few of the people, when reading the want ads, which probably 85 per cent of the readers do, ever realize just what splendid opportunities a three or four line notice will do.

A few days ago a reader of The Sun, who had just installed himself in a flat, purchased new furniture for the entire establishment, had to leave the city, due to a change in his business. "What shall I do with this outfit," he thought. Then he remembered the Sun want ads, put four lines in for a few days and sold all the furniture, at splendid prices, in a few days.

This is but one of the many incidents of a similar nature.

You may not have an outfit of furniture to sell, but you may have something around the house some one may want—an old carpet, or range, some musical instrument, or bit of furniture. A want ad. is a fascinating thing, for nearly every one reads them.

Try a want ad. for yourself, and test its merits. The cost is one cent a word for one insertion or three cents a word for a week, cash with order.

LOG SAVED A BURIED MAN

Strange Fate of Great Northern Flag man in Frozen Drifts.

Cashmere, Wash.—A strange tale comes from Chiwaukee of the most miraculous escape from death of a flagman on the Great Northern railroad near that place. He was buried by a snowslide and lay for five hours crushed down by the snow. No one knew of the disaster that had overtaken him. A rotary was sent out to clear away the slide and penetrated it some distance when it was stopped by a log across the track.

Workingmen who were set to digging the log out discovered what they supposed was the dead body of a man buried in the snow beside the log on the opposite side from the rotary. It proved to be the flagman, who was in a semi-unconscious condition from the cold and the weight of the snow. He soon revived and except for a few scratches and bruises, seemed little the worse for his awful experience. He said that he could hear the rotary coming and thought it was all up with him, but owing to his benumbed condition the apparent nearness of death caused him but little agitation. The log which saved his life proved to be the only one in the slide.

On account of the unusually deep snow a good many horses belonging to Indians are starving to death on the range. George Saluscan has lost 25, Dan Nason, "Dr. Jim," and others have lost a like number. The snow is so deep now that they could not get those still alive down out of the hills if they tried to do so.

King and Capitalist.

A new figure looms large on the horizon of Europe! A figure strange fantastic and ominous—the king who is capitalist, le roi d'affaires; the man who unites in himself the political and social prestige of a reigning monarch with the vast material power of a multimillionaire.

Assume, by way of illustration, that John D. Rockefeller had, by an act of Providence or a freak of fortune, in his young manhood been made perpetual President of the United States, and that he had retained as perpetual President all that thrift and cautious daring which enabled him to create the Standard Oil Company.

Suppose that he had then chosen to use his position as perpetual President to further his private interest as a money-getter. Consider the advantages of his position, at home and abroad, from the point of view of high finance; he would be able to control legislation at home, in the interest of his command all the machinery of the foreign diplomatic service to aid him in his intrigues abroad.

No doubt he would find himself hampered in his operations by constitutional formulas, the nagging criticism of legislators, and the inquisition of the press. But the art of controlling public opinion has, in recent years, reached a high state of perfection. Through the elaborate machinery of the modern press bureau a man of this president's wealth could reach and influence the entire world.

Suppose, now, that with all this vast power at his command, he had got the colonies of the United States, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and the rest, including Santo Domingo and Cuba, absolutely under his control, so that he could treat them as his personal possession and the inhabitants as something between tenants and serfs.

With the tremendous power he had acquired abroad he would then increase his power at home, aiming to make it as absolute there as it was in the colonies.

Conceive all this, not as the mere furniture of some fairy-land, but as an actual situation, and you will have a working knowledge of the conditions that exist in the tiny little country of Belgium, of which Leopold II is king, business manager, and general superintendent.—Robert B. Park in "A King in Business," in the November Everybody's.

Mrs. Henry Peck (to her caller).—I met my husband while out skating. He quite captivated me by the graceful way he cut the figure "8." Mr. Henry Peck (sotto voce).—Yes, and ever since that time I have been cutting the figure "0."—Boston Transcript.
